Argyle Canyon property

I attended the water meeting and I wanted to make a few comments.

We applied for and paid our money to get a permit in 2000. We then spent thousands of dollars on water tanks, pumps, piping, labor and machinery to get the water where we needed it. We also put in a septic tank to take care of the water from the Cabin and put it back into the ground.

When we received our permit I believe we could use 4 acre feet of water and could have some animals. We don't have plans for animals but would like the possibility of having them at sometime in the future.

We did everything to do this the right way and were told we had the right to use the water when we paid for the application. We feel like we should be granted the right to the water under the old requirements. We do not feel it is fair to get a sixteenth of that amount seven years after we applied.

With the improvement we have done on the property we are giving more water back to the stream than before the improvements. We have written letters pointing that out.

Thank you for your time. I would like to get this straightened out. Let me know what you think.

Sincerely,

Gary Rymer
