

6. The waters overflowing the diversion headgate, as referred to in paragraph 4, shall flow to Petterson and Firth along the west side of Section 13 for approximately one-fourth ( 1/4) mile, at which point claimants Petterson and Firth shall divide their waters in accordance with the flow and duty allocated to each of them as hereinbefore set forth. Any and all surplus waters shall, at that point, be permitted to re-enter the original natural channel into the Christensen property, and the same shall flow naturally and with-out obstruction or interference generally southerly and southeasterly and back into the Petterson and Firth properties, as supplemental to and in the manner provided for the other waters coming into that area which are referred to in paragraph 5.

The disposition of the surplus waters, as defined in this paragraph shall be, and hereby is, made a part of the adjudication of the rights of the three claimants herein for the use and benefit of their respective lands.
